

Summary

INTRODUCTION

1.	SOME BACKGROUND AND DEFINITIONS	9
1.1.	Mobility and migration	9
1.2.	Mobility implies uprooting	11
1.3.	Migration in America: a brief survey	13
1.4.	Migration in Europe	15
1.5.	What moves a person to migrate?	17
1.6.	Migration in the context of globalization	19
2.	WHY AND TO WHOM DOES MIGRATION CONCERN	23
2.1.	To the Church	23
2.1.1.	Background to the question	23
2.1.2.	Why is the Church concerned with migration?	24
2.1.3.	The Pastoral care of migrants	25
2.2.	To people of good will	27
2.3.	To the State	28
3.	DOCTRINAL APPROACH	31
3.1.	Biblical background	31
3.1.1.	In the Old Testament: the Chosen People as migrants	31
3.1.2.	In the New Testament: the Family of Nazareth as migrants	32
3.1.3.	Christians as guests and pilgrims in the Promised Land	32
3.2.	Ecclesiological dimension	33
3.3.	Some specific questions about migration in the Social Doctrine of the Church	38
3.3.1.	The right to migrate	39
3.3.2.	Is the right to migration absolute?	41
3.3.3.	Solidarity and migration: addressing the roots of the problem	42
3.3.4.	Economic development and the universal destiny of wealth	43
3.3.5.	Families and migration	45

3.3.6. The unity of the human family and the rejection of discrimination	45
3.3.7. Immigration and inter-religious dialogue	46
3.3.8. The right to just coexistence, without labels and respect for their culture	47
3.3.9. Migrants and human labor	50
3.3.10. The problem of illegal immigration	51
3.3.11. Crime and immigration	53
4. CONCLUSIONS	55
5. SELECTED GENERAL REFERENCES ON MIGRATION AND TEXTS FROM THE MAGISTERIUM OF THE CHURCH	57
6. APPENDICES	63